

BYU WELCOMES YOU

TO SUMMER SCHOOL

Registration for the summer quarter at Brigham Young University will be held in the Fieldhouse as in other regular quarters.

Indications point to a record enrollment, with an increasing number of students carrying over from the spring quarter.

The sign-up will be conducted in alphabetical arrangement, the hours of 9 a.m. to noon limited to A through K, and from 1:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. limited to L through Z.

Don't forget that many courses are taught on a quarter basis, and are so coordinated that the work of the second term is a logical extension of the first term. The rest of the courses are organized on a five-week term basis. You are all urged to register today for a full quarter's work, just as you do any other quarter of the year. However, it is possible to register for either term separately.

There are still ample living accommodations both on and off campus. Arrangements should be made immediately with the Office of Student Housing, Student Service Center.

For those of you who were going to take Edna Sterling's class in language arts, you will be interested in knowing that due to a recent train accident, Helen Grayum will substitute for Miss Sterling. Miss Grayum, expert in language arts from Seattle City Schools, and former editor of the D. C. Heath Publishing Company, has had a wide range of experience in this field.

In addition to the usual classes several institutes and festivals are to be held this quarter, such as the annual Music Festival and Clinic—again featuring the world renowned Paganini Quartet.

Workshops in Supervision and Curriculum Development, and one in School Building will be featured by the Education department.

The Utah Parent-Teacher Association will hold a conference during the session, as will the Audio-Visual Aids department, and the State District and City Directors of Adult Education.

A Family Life Institute and Clinic on Family Living, stressing the traditions of Mormon culture, has also been scheduled.

Remember that all students and their friends have been invited, to a big informal Get-Acquainted Social in the Smith ballroom, at 9 p.m. Friday evening.

FAMED PAGANINI QUARTET, on campus for the sixth consecutive year, will give their first concert Wednesday, 8:15 p.m. in the J. S. auditorium.

TO LEADERSHIP WEEK

We're glad to see you here, and hope you profit by your stay.

The purpose of Leadership Week is to help us see ourselves and our way of life more clearly and find desirable answers to our problems, and needs—in short, to learn how to live.

No one can learn how to live unless he has faith in God and the ability of his children to learn, no matter what their age or station in life may be.

When we sing in the music workshop we learn new methods of doing our work. In the puppetry workshop, we see a new skill for teaching our lessons. No one can look at the stars through the giant telescope on the Science building without broadening his horizons. Improved ways of doing ancestral research, a brand new witness for the divinity of the Bible, a better approach to your family problems, a deeper appreciation of great music, or a confirmation of your faith in God—all these await you this week.

Registration will take place in the lobbies of the Joseph Smith building and the Physical Science building. All visitors will register upon their arrival and at that time receive a registration badge which will admit them to the classes and the week's activities.

Everyone who registers benefits since (1) their names are placed on a mailing list to receive information concerning all B.Y.U. activities throughout the following year, and (2) they are admitted to activities at a reduced cost or at no cost at all.

Throughout the Leadership Week, general information and lost and found requests will be taken care of at the registration desks.

Call at the Housing Office, Student Services Center, if you haven't made arrangements for board and room as yet.

Visitors will please note the sequence of sixty minute class periods, beginning at 7:15 a.m. The noon period consists of a thirty-five minute lecture period. An effort will be made to close the doors promptly as each class begins, for the benefit of those who are listening. Visitors are urged to observe the time schedules to avoid interruptions, misunderstandings, and loss of time.

We have found it difficult to predict the number who will attend a given lecture. If the group is larger than the room will accommodate, we have found that it is wisdom not to make last minute changes in rooms. Therefore, those not accommodated should (1) request an additional lecture at a later period, or (2) attend one of the other lectures scheduled at that same hour.

BISHOP'S WORKSHOP activities are being planned for Leadership Week by Roy W. Doney, Harold Glen Clark, and the Presiding Bishopric.

TO ALUMNI DAY

Today, officials believe, will be the biggest Alumni Day in Brigham Young University's history.

A new date, a new program and new interest in the University are all elements which help to bring more alums back home for the annual meetings of the association.

In the past, Alumni Day has been held during commencement. It has been thought that this time was too busy to interrupt with other events. Many persons came into Provo only for the commencement and did not have time for Alumni Day. The new date will allow anyone attending Leadership Week to participate also in Alumni Day.

Although the Executive Council will meet in the morning hours today, the first official public meeting of the day will be the Emeritus Club's annual meeting to be held at 2 p.m. in the Joseph Smith building. The club, which accepts for membership only those who graduated from the University 50 or more years ago, will induct the Class of 1903 this year.

Registration of the main body of the alumni will begin at 4 p.m. in the Joseph Smith ballroom. A reception, where alums may meet school officials and old friends will take place during this time.

The annual smorgasbord will be held in the Social Hall beginning at 6 p.m. Tables will be arranged according to classes so that those classes holding specific reunions may be together during the dinner hour. Margaret S. Jacobs of the Executive Council, is arranging this event for the second year. Alumni members may buy tickets ($1.75) for the smorgasbord at the Association Offices, first floor, Maeser building.

Ten classes have scheduled reunions this year and each has arranged special programs.

After the class reunions and the smorgasbord, an elaborate stage production, entitled "History in the Making at BYU" will be presented in the Smith auditorium. This pageant is under the direction of Lavie H. Earl.

The history of the University in seven steps will be told with such luminaries as President Ernest L. Wilkinson, former presidents Franklin S. Harris and Christen Jensen as guest stars.

The first annual Alumni Ball will be held this year. In the past, when Alumni Day was held during commencement, alumni members attended the Senior Ball. This year for the first time alums will have a dance of their own.

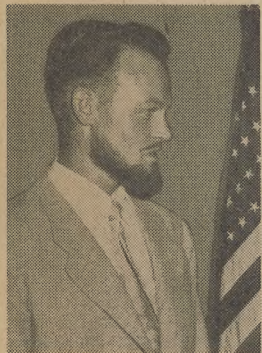

DIRECTING PROGRAM OF 1953 ALUMNI DAY are Association officers Raymond B. Holbrook, Maurine Murdock Hughes, and Wallace W. Brockbank.

OFF THE BEATEN PATH

The world premier showing of a new film by internationally-famous Nile River explorer, John M. Goddard will be shown tomorrow evening in the Field-house at 8 p.m.

The all-color, full-length motion picture, entitled "Off the Beaten Path" will be presented by the University as a feature of Leadership Week with Mr. Goddard in person to narrate a fascinating trip through the colorful countries of Mexico, Yucatan, Guatemala and Nicaragua.

Mr. Goddard will be remembered by campuses for his thrilling adventure film, "Kakys Down the Nile," which has been shown several times in the area.

One of the features of Goddard's new film is pictures of famous Paricutin, the "Overnight" volcano, which erupted from an Indian's cornfield without any warning and in a few months developed to a 2,000 feet fire-spitting monster. There are many vivid color shots of this great natural phenomenon in action with rivers of flowing lava devastating everything lying in their path.

Some of the Western Hemisphere's most impressive and beautiful ancient cities are depicted in the scenes taken at Teotihuacan, Uxmal, and Chichen Itza. Mr. Goddard shows the fabulous civilization of the early Americans.

The unusual film gets underway with an exciting fast moving bull-fight with 70,000 excited "Aficionados" cheering their beautiful costumed hero-Manolete to victory or death.

As a part of the University's annual Leadership Week, Mr. Goddard will also show his "Kakys Down the Nile" in the Joseph Smith auditorium at 6 p.m. Wednesday.

Tickets are on sale at the Smith Ticket office and at the Alumni offices in the Maeser building.

Something New Has Been Added — 8 Year Olds Begin College

A beginning class in German will be open summer quarter for young people between the ages of 8 and 15 years old.

Interested parents may enroll their children at the Extension Division before June 16. Further information may be obtained from Dr. Rogers, phone 2460, extension 302, or from Dr. Lynn M. Hilton, phone 2460, extension 226.

The Safety Valve Honors to Lundell ...

Dear Editor:

It was a disappointment to me to look at the sports page of the last UNIVERSE. The reason for my disappointment was that when I looked at the drawings of the athletes under "Sports Year Review" I did not find a face there that I had expected to see.

If I remember correctly, the only two major conference titles taken by Brigham Young this year were a first in the high hurdles, won by Dick Millett and a first in the two-mile run, won by Wayne Lundell. In addition to winning the conference title in the two-mile run, Lundell, in the division meet, established a new conference record, bettering the old record by more than eleven seconds. This, it seems to me, deserves better recognition.

No wonder, then, at my surprise over your apparent unconcern over this outstanding athlete. Dick Fuenning is the single representative of the track team in your "Sports Year Review." Now while respecting Fuenning as an athlete, we must, I think, recognize the fact that he took only third places in the 100 and 220 in the conference meet, and only second places in the division meet. I have wondered what makes this appear extraordinary and the breaking of a conference record, an everyday occurrence! Could it be that sports editors get fixed ideas of who is good and who is not, and that these ideas are hard to change, regardless of what happens in competitions.

Lundell's record-breaking race has a dramatic story behind it. For several years he has gone out for track, but until this spring no one paid any attention to him. He even had to buy his own spikes to run in or race days because those issued him were worn out. But still he persisted, refusing to be discouraged by lack of encouragement. His first years out for track were dogged by bad luck. Something always happened just as he got in shape. Last year in practice at the start of the season he stepped in a hole left by the removal of goal posts. The bone in his ankle was damaged and he had to stay out of competition. This year, just as he was beginning to show promise again, a hernia developed, and he has run all his races this year wearing a truss while waiting for the season to end before he underwent surgical treatment.

Of course his record doesn't need these supporting facts to be considered the most impressive single accomplishment made in athletics at BYU during the past year. The additional facts simply make it even more impressive. I feel that Lundell and Millett should have received the recognition due them. I hope you see your way clear, belatedly, to forget preconceived opinions and in the spirit of sportsmanship, which is the reason for the existence of sports, to recognize athletic greatness when you see it.

Visiting Specialist Conducts Reading Workshop

Dr. Lorene K. Fox of Queens College, Flushing, N.Y., will be a member of the Brigham Young University summer faculty this year.

She will conduct a workshop in the Teaching of Reading for the first two and one-half weeks of the first summer term.

Dr. Fox is an authority in elementary education, and has conducted workshops and participated in summer schools in many of the states. She is an author and specialist in the field of elementary education and currently is completing text books for one of the major book companies which develops educational text books. She is a former student of BYU.

INTERESTED IN CONSERVATION?

A complete unit in conservation will be offered this summer by the Brigham Young University. The unit will consist of two courses dealing with the conservation of the natural resources such as water, soil, timber, range forage, coal, oil, minerals, wildlife, and recreational areas.

Agronomy 107, soil origin, classification and conservation, and Botany 166, conservation of natural resources are the courses available. Either or both courses may be taken as part of the regular summer program. Dr. R. B. Farnsworth, chairman of the department of agronomy and soils, will teach the agronomy class and Joseph R. Murdock the botany class.

Prize-Winning Drama Planned

Thursday evening at 8:15 in the Joseph Smith auditorium, Dr. Harold L. Hansen, head of the Brigham Young University speech department, will present the modern play by Tennessee Williams, "The Glass Menagerie."

RaNaë Green and Bill Demos, both of Provo, have been cast as Laura and The Gentleman Caller. Julia Groberg of Idaho Falls will take the part of Amanda, and Ralph Lundgreen of Preston, Ida., will portray Tom.

This beautiful, almost fragile, play will be done with a minimum setting of rope, and will feature the original music composed for its highly successful Broadway run.

Tryouts are now being held at the Speech Center for the second summer production, Girardoux's "Madwoman of Chaillot," to be presented June 24 and 25. Anyone interested should contact Dr. Hansen immediately.

GOVERNMENT EXPENDITURE CHECK URGED

Dr. William F. Edwards, dean of the college of commerce at Brigham Young University, along with 57 other monetary economists, today urged the nation to check its financial affairs before the situation becomes "more dangerous."

In a prepared statement circulated throughout the nation, Dean Edwards and the other economists declared a very serious situation exists in today's monetary trends.

They credited financial "mischiefs" during the last quarter of a century for the present state of affairs. The departure from the international gold standard, devaluation of the dollar, large-scale monetization of government debt, and expansion of loans as contributing causes.

"Conditions in the United States are far removed from those that presumably would exist in an economy which had remained on a full gold standard and had avoided the credit abuses which have become so widespread," the statement said.

"Our problem," the statement continued, "is to maintain reasonable stability while getting back to a less vulnerable position."

As a remedy the economists recommended wise policies administered with frankness and courage. They further stated a full recognition of the current issues is the first step toward constructive action.

They concluded that only by the most judicious policies can the nation hope to effect, without major disaster, the restoration of sound monetary, credit, and fiscal conditions.

BUILDING WORKSHOP STARTS TODAY

Dr. Paul W. Seagers, a native of Pennsylvania, will conduct a one-week workshop on School Building and Planning at Brigham Young University the first week of the summer session beginning today.

He was trained in engineering, economics, accounting and education receiving his undergraduate work at Alfred and Cornell Universities and his Master's and Doctorate degrees at Columbia University.

His educational experience runs the gamut from classroom teacher, guidance director, principal, administrator, and state department supervisor in New York State to college professor in Indiana. At the present time, he is associate professor and school building planning consultant in the School of Education, Indiana University.

Over twenty years ago he administered his first school building program, having been interested in educational environment for a number of years. He is author of many articles and co-author of "American School Buildings."

The United States Government sent him to Germany after World War II to assist the Germans in planning their new school buildings. In addition to being consultant to many school corporations in Indiana, he is chairman of the Visual Task Committee of the Illuminating Engineering Society and a member of the following research and technical committees: Acoustical Committee of the American Society for Testing Materials, Research Committee of Phi Delta Kappa, Research Committee of Association of School Business Officials, Special Committee for National Council on Schoolhouse Construction and Color Committee of the Illuminating Engineering Society.

Dr. Seagers is especially interested in the development of an environment which not only inspires the pupil but also requires a minimum of nervous strains. He believes that color plays an important part both physically and psychologically in the new school room. He is recognized throughout the nation as an expert on color and environments.

With this issue of the UNIVERSITY Richard L. Pope and Don Van Slooten, newly appointed editor and business manager, take over the executive duties of the school newspaper.

Richard also edits the Wye Magazine, B. Y. and You, an experimental quarter—the Bumbury, and has previously been editor of The Millennial Star and several high school publications.

Don is doing graduate work in commerce, and has been active with the AMS Council, Homecoming committee, Blue Key, Viking social unit, and the intramural program.

BYU Professor To Study At Stanford

Russell N. Stansfield, assistant professor of secretarial training at Brigham Young University, has been granted Sabbatical leave for this summer and the forthcoming school year to work towards the Doctorate degree at Stanford University.

Mr. Stansfield received the B.S. degree in 1940, and the M.S. degree in 1949 from BYU. He majored in educational administration and minored in business education and English.

He attended North Sanpete High school in Mt. Pleasant, and Snow College at Ephraim before coming to BYU. Mr. Stansfield has been teaching advanced students in shorthand, and court reporting. Four of his students have passed the 200-word mark in shorthand in the past four years, and have received the diamond medal for this achievement. Many of his students have passed the 160 and 175-word drills.

A member of the U. S. Army for four years during World War II, he participated in the North African and Italian campaigns. Before joining the BYU faculty, he taught in Springville and Spanish Fork.

He is married to the former Leah Miner from Fairview, and they have three children.

BYU HOLDS "OPEN BARN"

The BYU Dairy held "open barn" last week to display to the public the newly completed barn and milking parlor located a mile out on the Pleasant View road.

The barn, built under the direction of Alvin Higbee of Buildings and Grounds, contains milking apparatus of the walk-through, pit type. This new pipe line milker will eliminate the need of buckets, which this process previously employed. The barn contains four stalls and equipment for milking four cows at a time with the milk going from cow to consumer without being touched by human hands.

University Summer School To Feature Guest Actress

Florence French will be guest actress in residence at Brigham Young University during the first term of summer school, it was announced today by Dr. Ariel S. Ballif, dean of the summer school.

A popular free-lance TV actress at the present time, she most recently starred in the legitimate stage production, Affairs of State, in the role of Constance.

Mrs. French has played some 70 roles from both the moderns and classics. She received the BFA degree in drama from University of Iowa. For four years she was staff actress with the Cleveland Playhouse, and for four years in the community theatre at Cedar Rapids, Ia.; Huntington, W. Va.; and Saginaw, Mich. She also spent eight years in summer stock at Chautauque, and Buffalo, N.Y.

Got A Free Evening?

Registration for summer school evening classes at Brigham Young University is underway in the Extension Division offices of the Student Service Center.

A variety of offerings are being made available during the summer quarter, June 15 through August 21, according to Dr. Lynn Hilton of the extension division.

Any person, regardless of prior schooling, may enroll in the evening school on a non-credit basis, said Dr. Hilton. If, however, a person desires to work for a degree he must be at least 21 years of age, or a high school graduate.

Offerings will include history, political science, Spanish, education, secondary education, speech, church history, and church administration.

Students who register after the officially scheduled registration days are required to pay a late registration fee of $3. A student is not registered until fees are paid.

LITTLE KNOWN FACTS ABOUT DIAMONDS

Long ago cavemen bound the ankles of the maidens of their choice, partly to signify engagement, and partly to keep them from running away. Later they made a practice of tying a band of sweet grass on their sweetheart's finger, with the same motive in mind. This gradually led up to the custom of giving engagement rings.
